Superbas Hang to Heels of Phillies, Giants Wake Up, but Yankees Are Idle

McCluskey Forgotten, So Giants Win Easily

Herzog Dispenses with Irish Aid Until McGraw's Men Have Piled Up Winning Lead, and Then It's Too Late.

By JEROME BEATTY.

The trouble was that Karl Von Herzog, manager of the Cincinnati Reds, forgot all about McCluskey until the eighth inning. So the Giants won at the Polo Grounds yesterday by the ridiculous score of 7 to 0. Had McGraw had a McCluskey among his twenty-one he wouldn't have forgotten about him. Not until he had forgotten about Doyle or Dooin or Kelly or St. Patrick's Day or the Benny Kauff incident.

But Herzog, travelling around with Mollwitz and Groh and Wagner YEDNO SETS NEW MARK and others of Garry Herrmann's hired hands, naturally would be inclined

Before yesterday's game Herzog mentioned modestly that he didn't ave a lefthander on his payroll. He had overlooked McCluskey. It was at the opening of the eighth that Herzog realized that Herrann's Germans were being beaten back. He looked over the beach and
